In addition to engaging and stimulating the elderly in terms of memory recovery and the rediscovery of their skills/dexterity, it involved the youngsters of the Social Aggregation Center and the children of the Municipal Recreation Center, in a process of re-appropriation of the local identity and culture. The goal was to create a theater workshop where the stories, legends, experiences of life lived would be translated into actions, manual activities, realization of scenes and costumes, and that would bring the staging of a work that represented the synthesis of the entire experience.
